Degree Intent Track

This form is for students who plan to become degree-seeking in the future

Direct Access Policies

The Direct Access Program is designed for non-degree evening students who wish to take individual courses while not actively pursuing a degree and those who need to take courses to earn additional credentials to become degree-seeking in the future. Students may register for a maximum of six hours in the two eight-week sessions in fall and spring, and three hours in the summer. Graduate credit is not allowed through Direct Access.

The following policies govern the registrant in Direct Access:

- 1) Students on dismissal status from any institution, including the University of Missouri-Columbia, are not eligible to register until one year has elapsed.
- 2) Students must be high school graduates.
- 3) Students may not transfer into a degree-granting division of the University during the session in which they are enrolled in Direct Access.
- 4) Transfer into a degree-granting division of the University requires completion of the regular application process.
- 5) Registration is open on a space-available basis.
- 6) Students enrolling in Direct Access will not normally be eligible for federal financial aid, since this form of registration is non-degree in orientation.
- 7) The Office of the University Registrar serves as the "Dean's Office" for Direct Access students.
Enrolling, adding and dropping courses should be done with the academic adviser for MU In The Evening, Chris Marshall. She can be reached by e-mail at MarshallCE@missouri.edu, by phone at (573) 882-2002 or by FAX at (573) 882-5071.
